The Owl who was afraid of the dark starts with the intro to Plop who wants to be a day bird and his mother tries to convince him that the dark is better. She tells him to talk to the people who are around and find out their views. Dark is beautiful, necessary, kind are just some of the opinions he drums up from people. Although the book is written for children, as an adult I truly appreciated

Writing became impossible. All her research - and each book about a young animal was meticulously researched - was done by the family in response to her persistent and often unanswerable questions. Not that you could guess all this from the finished product, where her sympathy and sense of humour overrides everything. Jill used to claim that she was unique in being an author who could neither
